However, Jesus' words address much more than the question of money. The text says that Jesus looked at him and loved him. For the young man, who was a potential disciple, this could have been the beginning of an intense, personal relationship with Christ. The young man replied that he already respected the Ten Commandments. Jesus, God's Word, invited him to go further. However the young man was not able to make that choice and commit to Christ.

Many people keep the Ten Commandments. Choosing to leave their wealth behind and following Christ is the next step.

The passage from St. Mark's Gospel that we read in today's liturgy is one of the most intriguing. A young man asks Jesus what he must do to inherit eternal life. Jesus asked him if he kept the Ten Commandments, the Decalogue. He responded: Teacher, I have kept all these since my youth". St. Mark records that Jesus, looking at him, loved him and said, "You lack one thing; go, sell what you own, and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." The young man did not have the courage to follow Jesus because he had great wealth.

The moral interpretation of this text is well known. It is about the attachment to wealth that impedes our hearts and prevents us from making bold choices. No one is completely free of financial concerns because they often determine our chances of survival in a money-based society.
